

Made eSpecially for Avery.

It was bedtime in Maplewood. Avery closed their eyes and took a soft breath.

"Let's take a dream-walk," a quiet voice whispered.

On the windowsill, a single star shimmered in the moonlight. Avery leaned closer.

"Some journeys only begin when we pay attention," the voice said. "Your heart will know the way."

Outside, the night sparkled with stars.
"Look up," the voice said. "Pause. Breathe. Listen."

Beside the path, three smooth stones glowed. The first invited patience, the second breath, the third listening.
Avery touched them, and the night became still.

A glowing door opened.
"When we listen to our own quiet, new worlds begin to whisper back."

The door waited, bright and open. Avery took one brave step closer.
"Trust that quiet feeling inside you," the voice said. "It already knows how to begin."

Avery floated among the stars.
"This is a place your quiet made," the voice whispered.
"Whenever the day feels too much, breathe and visit again."

The stars arranged themselves into tiny steps. Each one blinked when Avery took a breath.

"See?" said the voice. "With each breath, you light the next step."

Avery noticed a trail of paw prints and felt a tiny yes inside.
"You can follow me anytime," the voice said. Listening helps you find the way.

Ahead, the trail changed shape. It curved through the dewy grass, then slipped between the tall trees.
Avery smiled - the trail seemed to know exactly where to go.

Wind whooshed as Avery ran, light and quick.
“Listening brings courage,” the voice said. “It can feel like joy.”

A wide view appeared.
"Sometimes it helps to stop and see how far you've come," the voice said.

At the lookout, the whole world opened up.
Avery listened to the wind and felt a brave little calm settle inside.

Lunch was waiting. "Hungry? Let's eat," the voice said.
"Being kind to your body is listening, too."

"When you look closely, you can find beautiful things," the voice said.
Avery paused and found a Shining Shell.

The shell glowed softly in the sand. A tiny hum moved through the waves beside it.

"When something feels true," the voice said, "your heart remembers the sound."

A crystal cave glimmered.
"Small steps. Watch where your feet go," the voice said. "Careful can be brave."

Inside the cave, every step made a silver echo. Avery whispered, "I can do this."

And the cave echoed back, "You can do this."

Giant flowers stretched overhead. Avery gasped in surprise.
"You'll be amazed by what you can grow," the voice said.

Past the flowers, the trail grew thin and twinkly. For a moment, Avery could not see where it went.
Then the quiet within grew stronger, and the trail grew clear again.

The voice felt very close now, and a trail led deeper between the trees. "To hear me clearly, go quiet inside," it said. "That quiet is your heart."

The trail led into a circle of warm light, then stopped.
Avery took a soft breath, and something bright began to stir.

Fox stepped from the light, warm and bright.
"I've been with you the whole time," said Fox. "I am your quiet inside voice."

Then Avery understood. The voice had not been hiding in the trees or stars.
It had been tucked safely inside, helping all along.

"Ready to fly home?" asked Fox. They whooshed through the stars toward Maplewood.

"Wherever you go, pause, breathe, listen. I'm always with you."

Back home, the room was quiet and kind. The whole dream-walk still glimmered in the air.
Avery settled in, warm and safe - the journey was over, but the quiet stayed close.

Trace the path slowly with your finger.
Pause. Breathe. Listen.

Pause. Breathe. Listen.
My quiet voice is always with me.

Made for Avery in Maplewood.
Little Hero Labs